Hunger Seen as Farm Importance Awakener

FULL OVERHAUL FOR MANPOWER POLICY URGED

House Ag Committee Says U. S. Agencies Lacking In Vital Appreciation

RURAL AREAS CONFUSED

Reduction In Wages Or Boost In Prices O. Foodstuffs Among Recommendations

WASHINGTON, Oct. 16 — Declaring that "maybe a few million hungry stomachs will awaken the people and the programmers to a better understanding and appreciation of those who till the soil," the House agriculture committee today called for a complete overhaul of government manpower policies to relieve the farm labor shortage.

In a formal report made public by Chairman Fulmer (D) S. C., the committee recommended:

1. Issuance of a directive to local draft boards to defer "men essentially engaged in the production of vital food and fiber supplies."
2. Either an increase in farm prices or a reduction in industrial wages "to the same comparative level of farm wages."
3. Immediate provision "for supplying the farmers with necessary farm equipment, machinery and repair parts."
4. A "comprehensive survey of manpower."

U. S. Agency Rapped

The committee accused the U. S. Employment Service of contributing "a great deal toward the present critical farm labor shortage" by "acting as labor recruiting offices" for industry.

"They have not hesitated to cooperate with labor solicitors who have gone out on the farms to entice workers away," the report stated.

"Instead of ample help, the farmers are finding it necessary, on account of the shortage of labor, to sell their farms, their livestock, and their dairy herds. Many crops are going to waste in the fields for lack of help and machinery to gather them.

"Instead of ample tools to work with, the farmers are told that farm implements and machinery will be rationed."

Blame Placed

The committee, which took testimony from Secretary of Agriculture Wickard, Maj. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, Selective Service director, WPB Chairman Donald Nelson, and War Manpower Administrator Paul V. McNutt, blamed the draft, voluntary enlistments and "high industrial wages and short hours" for the depletion of the farm labor supply.

"We are convinced," the committee said, "that the various government agencies connected with the war effort have not shown the

"Impulse" Blamed for Kidnaping

Girl, 4, Hunted By 25,000 In Two States, Unharmed By Ship Worker

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 16 — One of the west coast's greatest manhunters, featured by the aid of nearly 25,000 civilian defense wardens, came to an end today when a Portland, Ore., shipyard worker confessed to the "impulse" kidnaping of four-year-old Vivian Miller of San Francisco.

Little Vivian was freed unharmed at Grants Pass, Ore., yesterday, nearly 48 hours after she disappeared while playing in front of her grandmother's home in San Francisco. Several hours later Beaumont B. Dubois, 39-year-old war worker, was arrested with his wife near Red Bluff, Cal., 170 miles south of Grants Pass.

Sheriff J. N. Froome of Tehama county reported that Dubois had made a signed confession. Dubois, said the sheriff, related that he had been drinking when he spied the little girl playing on a San Francisco street last Tuesday and asked the child if she would "like a new daddy."

LAST BARRIERS TO TEEN DRAFT BEING REMOVED

Timetable Calls For Passage By House Saturday And Senate Tuesday

TO F. D. R. BY THURSDAY

Immediate Order Ready For Board, And Induction To Start December 1

WASHINGTON, Oct. 16—Senate and House committees today prepared to remove the last barriers to enactment of legislation to draft 18 and 19-year-old youths, with final congressional action by the middle of next week in prospect.

The "time table" fixed by congressional and military officials calls for:

1. The House to pass the legislation Saturday.
2. Senate to act Tuesday.
3. Bill to the White House late Wednesday or Thursday for President Roosevelt's signature.
4. Issuance of an order late next week to local draft boards to start sifting through their 18 and 19-year-old classifications to make ready for the December Selective Service call.
5. First inductions of teen-age youths to start December 1.

The House military affairs committee reported its version of the legislation late yesterday, with the rules committee slated to act on the measure today. The House bill bears the name of Rep. Wadsworth (R) N. Y., co-author of the original draft act, and was approved unanimously.

Hearing Ends

The Senate military affairs committee ended its hearings yesterday on a similar bill sponsored by Sen. Gurney (R) S. D., and convened today behind closed doors to whip the legislation into final shape.

Maj. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, Selective Service director, estimates that 1,500,000 youths between 18 and 20 will be drafted under the law.

The House committee, however, adopted two amendments which might affect the speed with which Selective Service will be able to act.

One amendment allows any youth who requests it to finish his school year before induction, but in no case would this type of deferment be operative beyond next July 1. This might slow down induction somewhat if many students asked deferment.

Single Men First

A second amendment forbids any state draft quota to be filled with men having dependents until all single men have been inducted who are available in that state, with the same priority system applying on down the scale to fathers. The latter would be the last to go.

Gen. Hershey, however, told the committee that this amendment would make it difficult to fill draft quotas speedily, but the provision prevailed. Rep. Kilday (D) Tex., who sponsored it, de-

MORGENTHAU IN LONDON; REASON IS KEPT SECRET

LONDON, Oct. 16 — United States Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau has arrived in England, it was announced officially today.

Morgenthau will hold a press conference later in the day. Meanwhile there was no statement as to the exact purpose of his visit, although it was known that he has already conferred with a number of British treasury officials.

The American's arrival was a closely guarded secret and the original plan was to give his visit no publicity, following the same procedure as during the earlier visit of General George C. Marshall and Admiral Ernest J. King.

MORE RATIONING NEARS RAPIDLY

Officials Mum, But Coffee, Tea, Milk, Meat And Butter Probably On List

WASHINGTON, Oct. 16 — OPA's "blueprint for expansion" was unfolded today along with the disclosure that additional rationing programs will be initiated almost as rapidly as local rationing boards can absorb them. Officials declined to name the specific commodities destined for rationing fearing a "run" on the market, but most likely possibilities are coffee, tea, milk, meat and butter. All have been the subject of speculation in recent weeks.

Already an organization of 40,000 employees, including 5,000 in Washington, the rapidly expanding price agency plans to establish district offices in every city in the nation of 100,000 population or more, and hopes to set up branches in all cities of 75,000 people or over.

The future of OPA was outlined to officials from the existing eight regional, 48 state and 39 district offices at a two-day conference which opened in Washington today.

Price Administrator Leon Henderson, who received $120,000,000 last summer to conduct the affairs of OPA, probably will have (Continued on Page Three)

GENERALS RAP HUN PROPOSAL FOR 'PROTECTION'

LONDON, Oct. 16 — Two of France's most famous generals, Maxime Weygand and Henri Giraud, have protested to Marshal Petain against agitation in Paris for German "protective occupation" of French African possessions, a dispatch from Madrid to the Daily Mail said today.

The two generals were said to have warned the chief of state not to yield to pressure to accept German aid against rumored allied attacks on French colonies.

Gen. Weygand was former commander of France's colonial armies in North Africa and has been opposed to any military collaboration with Germany. Gen. Giraud escaped from a German military prison several months ago and is reputed to have a larger public following than any other French military leader.

NAZIS MURDER 25

LONDON, Oct. 16 — German authorities have shot 25 Luxembourgish citizens who protested against Nazi annexation of their country, according to reports reaching London today. Most of the victims were public employees—postmasters, town clerks and teachers who had participated in a general strike.

R. C. OFFERS TO BE MEDIATOR IN CHAIN DISPUTE

LONDON, Oct. 16 — The British government disclosed today that a committee of the International Red Cross had offered to mediate the controversy between Britain and Germany over the chaining of war prisoners.

The official British announcement said that Britain expressed its appreciation of the offer, but pointed out that since the Swiss government already had been invited to take up the matter with Germany the Red Cross committee, in consultation with Swiss authorities, would have to decide themselves whether their services at present could be effective.

The Berlin raid said yesterday that the British note offering to remove shackles from 1,376 German prisoners if the Nazis would unchain a like number of Britons and Canadians had been received in the Reich capital.

BOARDS TO SET FARM DRIVING

Miles Of Essential Operation Of Trucks To Be Decided By War Committees

WASHINGTON, Oct. 16 — The Agriculture department revealed today that county farm war committees will decide how many miles of essential truck driving each farmer will be allowed next year.

The Office of Defense Transportation, officials said, has agreed that the essential mileage certified by local agriculture committees on farm trucks' "certificates of war necessity" will be approved.

Agriculture war boards, it was learned, have been authorized to appoint county committees to aid farmers in filling out applications for the essential trucking certificates next week.

These committees, the Agriculture department announced, will be charged with developing transportation programs in their county; assisting farmers to fill out certificates of war necessity on October 22, 23 and 24; and with submitting farmer applications for new trucks.

The department said that they will consist of five men—the chief of the county agriculture war board, two farmer representatives, a trucker and a farm commodity dealer.

Under new plans, the department said, the committees must decide for ODT how many miles of essential driving each farmer is to be allowed next year.

Under original plans, the department said, farm applications for trucking certificates would have gone straight to ODT trucking headquarters in Detroit where essential mileage allowed would (Continued on Page Three)

PRIEST, SEVEN STAFF MEMBERS SLAIN BY JAPS

SOMEWHERE IN AUSTRIA, Oct. 16 — Additional Japanese atrocities in occupied areas were disclosed today in the announcement that the Roman Catholic Bishop of the Kai Islands and seven members of his mission staff were murdered by the conquerors sometime in July.

The announcement was made by a Netherlands East Indies official who said the Japanese were enraged at the destruction of the mission launch to prevent it falling into the enemy's hands.

The murdered prelate, identified as Bishop Aerts, was 70 years old. Several other priests in outlying islands of the Kai group, and in the Aru and Tenimber islands were reported to have been killed by Japanese occupation forces.

The islands lie between the North Australian coast and western New Guinea.

Mussolini Going Daft, Is Belief

Il Duce, Jolted By Course Of War, Babbles In Effort To Justify Actions

WASHINGTON, Oct. 16 — A responsible official source in Washington today disclosed that the American government has received reports which indicate there is a possibility that the mind of Premier Benito Mussolini of Italy is being affected by the course of the war.

One of the reports which has reached the American government from a confidential source states that Mussolini now "babbles like a child" in his efforts to impress people with the justness of Italy's cause.

In view of the lack of more positive evidence concerning Il Duce's mental state, American officials are treating the reports with reserve. They are inclined to interpret them as a sign that Mussolini probably is becoming more irrational rather than insane in the common sense of the word.

Cause For Worry

However, official Washington believes the Italian dictator has enough to worry about now to disturb the mind of almost any man, especially one of his bombastic character.

Diplomatic and other advisers indicate that the Italian people are extremely unhappy about their part in the war, and that there is growing resentment among them against the fact the German Gestapo virtually controls the country.

The Italian people are said to be showing their resentment by a lack of wholehearted cooperation in the war effort. They appear to be doing what they are told to do out of fear rather than with enthusiasm.

Outcome Feared

Furthermore, it is believed that Mussolini and the Italian people are beginning to become concerned over the outcome of the war. When Il Duce took Italy into the war with his stab in the back at France, it is thought that he be-

SCIOTO PUPILS TO RAZE SILO, SEND IT TO WAR

Scioto township school boys and girls are busily engaged in Uncle Sam's war effort, informing Superintendent George D. McDowell that they are preparing to raze a big metal silo on a farm near the village of Commercial Point. Robert D. Shauk, school superintendent, told Mr. McDowell that an unestimated amount of metal will be obtained from the silo. Name of its owner was not learned by the county superintendent.

All other schools of the county are carrying on scrap drives, with several reporting excellent success. New Holland, Ashville and Walnut are leading the parade right now, with several tons collected at each salvage depot, but other schools are expecting to add many tons to the piles collected so far at their buildings.

Employees of the Circleville Iron and Metal company are continuing to remove the big Circleville scrap pile from West Franklin street. The metal is being sorted as it is put on trucks and then is hauled to the Circleville Iron and Metal junk yard and to Columbus. So far no definite figure has been announced concerning the tonnage. Salvage officials estimated the first day of the drive that there might be 200 tons of all kinds of metal in the half-block long pile, but it appears now that this estimate might have been high.

NO NEWS ON SOLOMONS

Navy Communications Make No Mention Of Land Fight On Guadalcanal

BULLETIN

WASHINGTON, Oct. 16

—Striking an ominous note, the Navy today announced that American positions on Guadalcanal are being shelled by enemy artillery and disclosed that a large force of Nipponese warships is poised to strike from the northern Solomons.

The Navy stated that United States motor torpedo boats have joined in the furious battle for the southern Solomons and have reported one probable hit on an enemy cruiser.

In view of the shelling the situation appears grave, because until to date Nipponese forces have been unable to move in heavy weapons. Many enemy troops with equipment have landed on Guadalcanal.

BULLETIN

WASHINGTON, Oct. 16 — In a continuation of the American offensive to drive the Japanese out of the Aleutians, the Navy announced today that U. S. Army bombers and fighters have dropped six tons of demolition and numerous incendiary bombs on Japanese positions on Kiska Island.

No enemy aircraft opposition was encountered, but one American fighter plane was reported lost, presumably by anti-aircraft action. Three enemy seaplanes were destroyed on the water.

On October 11 long-range bombers dropped six tons of demolition bombs on the camp area at Kiska but results were not observed, the Navy reported.

By International News Service

The decisive battle for Stalingrad and control of the Volga was under way today, and Russian dispatches admitted that the defenders had been forced to give ground before furious enemy assaults in the northwest outskirts of the city.

The Germans hurled two infantry divisions—30,000 men—against the Soviet positions on a narrow sector guarding the workers settlement and pressed back the weary defenders.

All reports indicated that the German high command is making a final mighty effort to smash Russian resistance in the Caucasus.

Only meagre reports came from the Solomon Islands where a second crucial struggle raged for control of the South Pacific islands. A Japanese fleet unit, including two troop transports, was reported standing off Savo Island Thursday morning, awaiting a chance to put more men and supplies ashore on Guadalcanal Island.

Marines Doing Job

No news came through as to whether they had succeeded. Navy communiqués made no mention of land fighting between the U. S. Marine garrison and the Japanese forces on Guadalcanal, but in Honolulu Admiral Chester W. Nimitz, Pacific fleet commander, said the Marines were "effectively meeting every force hurled at them."

In Washington military observers who have closely followed the course of developments in the Solomons had no doubt that heavy forces of the U. S. Navy had ar-

Reduction In Wages Or Boost In Prices Of Foodstuffs Among Recommendations

WASHINGTON, Oct. 16 — Declaring that "maybe a few million hungry stomachs will awaken the people and the programmers to a better understanding and appreciation of those who till the soil," the House agriculture committee today called for a complete overhaul of government manpower policies to relieve the farm labor shortage.

In a formal report made public by Chairman Fulmer (D) S. C., the committee recommended:

"Impulse" Blamed for Kidnaping

Girl, 4, Hunted By 25,000 In Two States, Unharmed By Ship Worker

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 16 — One of the west coast's greatest manhunters, featured by a list of nearly 25,000 civilian defense wardens, came to an end today when a Portland, Ore., shipyard worker confessed to the "impulse" kidnaping of four-year-old Vivian Miller of San Francisco.

Little Vivian was freed unharmed at Grants Pass, Ore., yesterday, nearly 48 hours after she disappeared while playing in front of her grandmother's home in San Francisco. LAST BARRIERS TO TEEN DRAFT BEING REMOVED

Timetable Calls For Passage By House Saturday And Senate Tuesday

TO F. D. R. BY THURSDAY

Immediate Order Ready For Board, And Induction To Start December 1

WASHINGTON, Oct. 16 — Senate and House committees today prepared to remove the last barriers to enactment of legislation to draft 18 and 19-year-old youths, with final congressional action by the middle of next week in prospect.

The "time table" fixed by congressional and military officials calls for:

1. The House to pass the legislation Saturday.
2. Senate to act Tuesday.
3. Bill to the White House late Wednesday or Thursday for President Roosevelt's signature.
4. Issuance of an order late next week to local draft boards to start sifting through their 18 and 19-year-old classifications to make ready for the December Selective Service call.
5. First inductions of teen-age youths to start December 1.

The House military affairs committee reported its version of the legislation late yesterday, with the rules committee slated to act on the measure today. The House bill bears the name of Rep. Wadsworth (R) N. Y., co-author of the original draft act, and was approved unanimously.

Hearing Ends
The Senate military affairs committee ended its hearings yesterday on a similar bill sponsored by Sen. Gurney (R) S. D., and convened today behind closed doors to whip the legislation into final shape.

Maj. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, Selective Service director, estimates that 1,500,000 youths between 18 and 20 will be drafted under the law.

The House committee, however, adopted two amendments which might affect the speed with which Selective Service will be able to act.

One amendment allows any youth who requests it to finish his school year before induction, but in no case would this type of deferment be operative beyond next July 1. This might slow down induction somewhat if many students asked deferment.

Single Men First
A second amendment forbids any state draft quota to be filled with men having dependents until all single men have been inducted who are available in that state, with the same priority system applying on down the scale to fathers. The latter would be the last to go.

Gen. Hershey, however, told the committee that this amendment would make it difficult to fill draft quotas speedily, but the provision prevailed. Rep. Kilday (D) Tex., who sponsored it, declared (Continued on Page Three)

GENERALS RAP HUN PROPOSAL FOR 'PROTECTION'

LONDON, Oct. 16 — Two of France's most famous generals, Maxime Weygand and Henri Giraud, have protested to Marshal Petain against agitation in Paris for German "protective occupation" of French African possessions, a dispatch from Madrid to the Daily Mail said today.

The two generals were said to have warned the chief of state not to yield to pressure to accept German aid against rumored allied attacks on French colonies.

Gen. Weygand was former commander of France's colonial armies in North Africa and has been opposed to any military collaboration with Germany. Gen. R. C. OFFERS TO BE MEDIATOR IN CHAIN DISPUTE

LONDON, Oct. 16 — The British government disclosed today that a committee of the International Red Cross had offered to mediate the controversy between Britain and Germany over the chaining of war prisoners.

The official British announcement said that Britain expressed its appreciation of the offer, but pointed out that since the Swiss government already had been invited to take up the matter with Germany the Red Cross committee, in consultation with Swiss authorities, would have to decide themselves whether their services at present could be effective.

The Berlin raid said yesterday that the British note offering to remove shackles from 1,376 German prisoners if the Nazis would unchain a like number of Britons and Canadians had been received in the Reich capital.

And he wept for the grasshopper—the silly grasshopper—who had nothing in his cellar but dust and nothing on his shelves but dust and nothing in his head but dust, tiddle dum tiddle dee.

So they came and took one of his tires, tiddle dum tiddle dee.

And they told him he could not have any more oil or any more sugar for weeks and weeks, tiddle dum tiddle dee.

And he said "will this win the war?" and they said "yes." And he said "Hooray, tiddle dum tiddle dee!"

And then he wept anew and said "what will become of the poor grasshopper who has nothing, tiddle dum tiddle dee?"

And they said "We have never lost a grasshopper yet, tiddle dum tiddle dee."

Thought for the day: Tiddle dum tiddle dee.

BOARDS TO SET FARM DRIVING

Miles Of Essential Operation Of Trucks To Be Decided By War Committees

WASHINGTON, Oct. 16 — The Agriculture department revealed today that county farm war committees will decide how many miles of essential truck driving each farmer will be allowed next year.

The Office of Defense Transportation, officials said, has agreed that the essential mileage certified by local agriculture committees on farm trucks' "certificates of war necessity" will be approved. Agriculture war boards, it was learned, have been authorized to appoint county committees to aid farmers in filling out applications for the essential trucking certificates next week.

These committees, the Agriculture department announced, will be charged with developing transportation programs in their county; assisting farmers to fill out certificates of war necessity on October 22, 23 and 24; and with submitting farmer applications for new trucks.

The department said that they will consist of five men—the chief of the county agriculture war board, two farmer representatives, a trucker and a farm commodity dealer.

Under new plans, the department said, the committees must decide for ODT how many miles of essential driving each farmer is to be allowed next year.

Under original plans, the department said, farm applications for trucking certificates would have gone straight to ODT trucking headquarters in Detroit where essential mileage allowed would (Continued on Page Three)

PRIEST, SEVEN STAFF MEMBERS SLAIN BY JAPS

SOMEWHERE IN AUSTRIA, Oct. 16 — Additional Japanese atrocities in occupied areas were disclosed today in the announcement that the Roman Catholic Bishop of the Kai Islands and seven members of his mission staff were murdered by the conquerors sometime in July.

The announcement was made by a Netherlands East Indies official who said the Japanese were enraged at the destruction of the mission launch to prevent it falling into the enemy's hands.

The murdered prelate, identified as Bishop Aerts, was 70 years old. Several other priests in outlying islands of the Kai group, and in the Aru and Tenimber islands were reported to have been killed by Japanese occupation forces.

The islands lie between the North Australian coast and western New Guinea.

Mussolini Going Daft, Is Belief

Il Duce, Jolted By Course Of War, Babbles In Effort To Justify Actions

WASHINGTON, Oct. 16 — A responsible official source in Washington today disclosed that the American government has received reports which indicate there is a possibility that the mind of Premier Benito Mussolini of Italy is being affected by the course of the war.

One of the reports which has reached the American government from a confidential source states that Mussolini now "babbles like a child" in his efforts to impress people with the justness of Italy's cause.

In view of the lack of more positive evidence concerning Il Duce's mental state, American officials are treating the reports with reserve. They are inclined to interpret them as a sign that Mussolini probably is becoming more irrational rather than insane in the common sense of the word.

Cause For Worry

However, official Washington believes the Italian dictator has enough to worry about now to disturb the mind of almost any man, especially one of his bombastic character.

Diplomatic and other sources indicate that the Italian people are extremely unhappy about their part in the war, and that there is growing resentment among them against the fact the German Gestapo virtually controls the country.

The Italian people are said to be showing their resentment by a lack of wholehearted cooperation in the war effort. They appear to be doing what they are told to do out of fear rather than with enthusiasm.

Outcome Feared
Furthermore, it is believed that Mussolini and the Italian people are beginning to become concerned over the outcome of the war. When Il Duce took Italy into the war with his stab in the back at France, it is thought that he be-

SCIOTO PUPILS TO RAZE SILO, SEND IT TO WAR

Scioto township school boys and girls are busily engaged in Uncle Sam's war effort, informing Superintendent George D. McDowell that they are preparing to raise a big metal silo on a farm near the village of Commercial Point. Robert D. Shauk, school superintendent, told Mr. McDowell that an unestimated amount of metal will be obtained from the silo. Name of its owner was not learned by the county superintendent.

All other schools of the county are carrying on scrap drives, with several reporting excellent success. New Holland, Ashville and Walnut are leading the parade right now, with several tons collected at each salvage depot, but other schools are expected to add many tons to the piles collected so far at their buildings.

Employees of the Circleville Iron and Metal company are continuing to remove the big Circleville scrap pile from West Franklin street. The metal is being sorted as it is put on trucks and then is hauled to the Circleville Iron and Metal junk yard and to Columbus. So far no definite figure has been announced concerning the tonnage. Salvage officials estimated the first day of the drive that there might be 200 tons of all kinds of metal in the half-block long pile, but it appears now that this estimate might have been high.

TWO SOLDIERS DROWN

FORT DEVENS, Mass., Oct. 16 — Two soldiers drowned when the raft on which they were attempting to cross Nashua river capsized, fort officials disclosed today. The victims were Privates David Rudko of Bronx, N. Y., and Harold E. Hansen of Brooklyn, N. Y.

The decision battle for Stalingrad and control of the Volga was under way today, and Russian dispatches admitted that the defenders had been forced to give ground before furious enemy assaults in the northwest outskirts of the city.

The Germans hurled two infantry divisions—30,000 men—against the Soviet positions on a narrow sector guarding the workers' settlement and pressed back the weary defenders.

All reports indicated that the German high command is making a final mighty effort to smash Russian resistance in the Caucasus.

Navy Communications Make No Mention Of Land Fight On Guadalcanal

BULLETIN

WASHINGTON, Oct. 16

—Striking an ominous note, the Navy today announced that American positions on Guadalcanal are being shelled by enemy artillery and disclosed that a large force of Nipponese warships is poised to strike from the northern Solomons.

The Navy stated that United States motor torpedo boats have joined in the furious battle for the southern Solomons and have reported one probable hit on an enemy cruiser.

In view of the shelling the situation appears grave, because until to date Nipponese forces have been unable to move in heavy weapons. Many enemy troops with equipment have landed on Guadalcanal.

BULLETIN

WASHINGTON, Oct. 16

In a continuation of the American offensive to drive the Japanese out of the Aleutians, the Navy announced today that U. S. Army bombers and fighters have dropped six tons of demolition and numerous incendiary bombs on Japanese positions on Kiska Island.

No enemy aircraft opposition was encountered, but one American fighter plane was reported lost, presumably by anti-aircraft action. Three enemy seaplanes were destroyed on the water.

On October 11 long-range bombers dropped six tons of demolition bombs on the camp area at Kiska but results were not observed, the Navy reported.

The decisive battle for Stalingrad and control of the Volga was under way today, and Russian dispatches admitted that the defenders had been forced to give ground before furious enemy assaults in the northwest outskirts of the city.

The Germans hurled two infantry divisions—30,000 men—against the Soviet positions on a narrow sector guarding the workers' settlement and pressed back the weary defenders.

All reports indicated that the German high command is making a final mighty effort to smash Russian resistance in the Caucasus.

Only meagre reports came from the Solomon Islands where a second crucial struggle raged for control of the South Pacific islands. A Japanese fleet unit, including two troop transports, was reported standing off Savo Island Thursday morning, awaiting a chance to put more men and supplies ashore on Guadalcanal island.

Marines Doing Job

No news came through as to whether they had succeeded. Navy communiques made no mention of land fighting between the U. S. Marine garrison and the Japanese forces on Guadalcanal, but in Honolulu Admiral Chester W. Nimitz, Pacific fleet commander, said the Marines were "effectively meeting every force hurled at them."

In Washington military observers who have closely followed the course of developments in the Solomons had no doubt that heavy forces of the U. S. Navy had arrived. (Continued on Page Three)

REGISTRATION FOR OIL SET TO START TUESDAY

Dealers Call To Sign Federal Records At Office Of Local Board

MANY FARMERS AFFECTED

Sales Of Fuel To Be Made Only On U. S. Coupon Credit System

Registration for fuel oil and kerosene dispensed under the OPA rationing plan will start in Circleville next Tuesday when dealers start to sign necessary papers at county rationing board office in City Hall. Two days will be provided for the dealer registration, although rationing officials are urging all dealers to appear at the office on Tuesday, to make way for the start of consumer registration which opens October 21 and continues until the end of the month.

More definite information concerning the consumer registration will be announced as soon as rationers have prepared for the sign up. It is possible that Circleville fuel oil and kerosene users will be asked to report at the City Hall office for registration, with rural folk going to the schools or other central areas. Nothing definite, however, has been worked out concerning the consumer registration.

According to estimates announced by the OPA there are 36 homes in the county heated by fuel oil with industrial, commercial and governmental consumers numbering 300, while domestic, miscellaneous and agricultural users numbering 3,200. These figures include users of kerosene as well as fuel oil.

Sales of fuel oil to all consumers within the 30-state rationed area can be only by a coupon credit system.

Designed to control deliveries from now until OPA coupons can be distributed later in October, the credit system provides that every consumer, dealer, and supplier who receives deliveries of fuel oil for any purpose must, execute a written promise to surrender to the seller ration coupons for the number of gallons of fuel delivered as soon as the coupons are available.

Consumers must redeem these written promises, or coupon notes within 15 days after the OPA fuel ration order is issued. OPA assumes that by that time all consumers will have received their rations from a local war price and rationing board and can, therefore, redeem their notes.

All dealers and suppliers of fuel oil, who are required to execute their own coupon notes, must also redeem their notes within 15 days after the date of the OPA Order, and will do so with the coupons they get from their customers. Since every transfer in the trade will be covered by a coupon note, the redemption of the notes will result in a retroactive "flow back" of coupons and will provide a basis for complete audit and control of the trade by OPA, under its rationing regulations, for the entire month of October.

Dealers and suppliers who are required to register, must register inventory and storage capacity as of October 1, 1942. Similarly, consumers who register during October, will state their inventory as of October 1, 1942, and their rations will be computed as from October 1, 1942.

Dealers and suppliers within the rationed area are required under the WPB Order to keep complete records of all purchases and sales, and to keep on hand all coupon notes taken at the time of sales. Dealers and suppliers must report to a local war price and rationing board any person who has failed to redeem coupon notes within ten days after the date set for redemption.

Although the order suggests a coupon note form, the dealer may actually use any substantially similar form that will serve the purpose in his case.

Coupons may be used in lieu of coupon notes as soon as they are available.

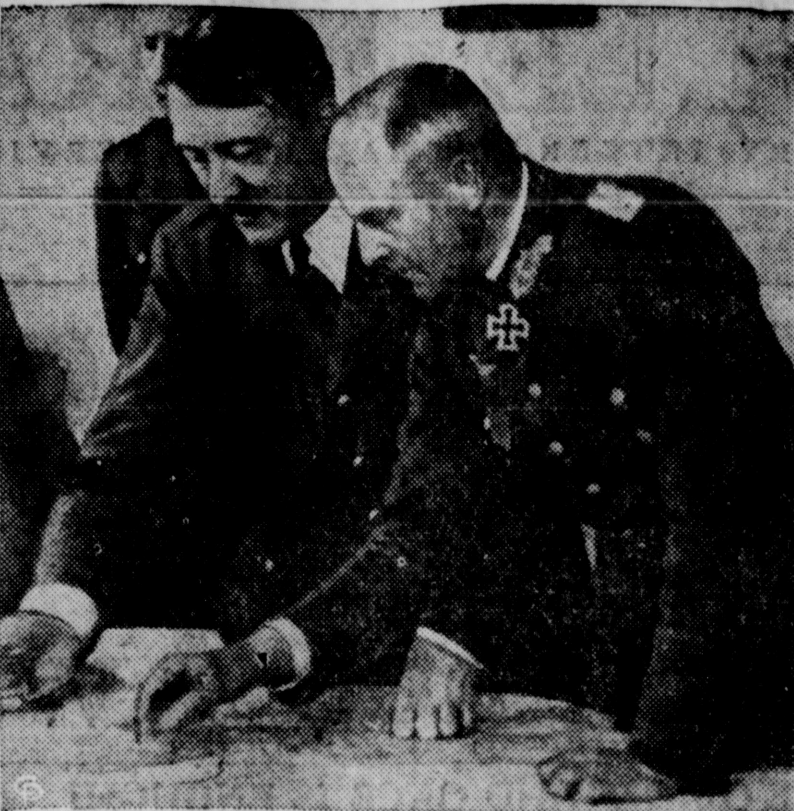

Pickaway county has been assigned to Zone B, which includes Belmont, Noble, Morgan, Hocking, Fayette, Clinton, Greene, Montgomery and Preble counties, under the fuel oil and kerosene rationing program.

There are 65 covered bridges still standing in New Hampshire. One of the best known was built in 1834 over the Ammonoosuc river at Batch.

IN HITLER'S REPORTED HIGH COMMAND SHAKEUP

Gen. Franz Halder, left, has been dismissed from his post as chief of the army general staff and replaced, at least temporarily, with Gen. Hans Jodl, seen at right with Hitler, according to a London newspaper which quotes "a most reliable source." The purge allegedly was instituted by Hitler because of the failure of the German high command to take Stalingrad on schedule.

Soong Uses Big Plane; Materials Still Piled

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON, Oct. 16—U. S. Army officers were "burned up" when China's Foreign Minister T. V. Soong managed to obtain through the White House a stratoliner in which to fly from Washington back to China.

In the stratoliner he is taking ten friends, thereby using up extremely valuable cargo space.

The Army did its best to block use of the stratoliner. It knew tons of equipment allocated to China were piled up, waiting for means of transportation. It also knew that T. V. Soong, long had battled to get more weapons for China.

So the Army opposed use of the stratoliner. However, when T. V. Soong insisted, the matter was referred to the White House—which sided with the Chinese Foreign Minister and ruled that he should have the big passenger plane.

Only other high ranking member of the diplomat circle to angle for a stratoliner was Madame Martins, Conga-dancing wife of the Brazilian Ambassador. Madame Martins was going back to Brazil, wanted to fly in a stratoliner instead of in an ordinary passenger plane. The Army opposed, argued that stratoliners were needed to fly men to Africa, India, Australia.

However, vivacious Madame Martins spoke to high-placed friends in the State Department and they gave her a stratoliner—until younger State Department officials sided with the Army so vigorously that the order was overruled. In the end, Madame Martins flew in an ordinary passenger plane.

NOTE: Foreign Minister Soong, long a resident of Washington, now will remain permanently in China, where he constantly gets in the hair of his brother-in-law, Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek.

STEEL SHORTAGE PROBE

The long-smouldering row over whether the nation should build quick new sponge iron mills and also develop its isolated and Far Western iron deposits will flare into the open in Congress next week.

On one side of the row are Far Western and Southern Congressmen, plus Secretary Ickes, plus Republic Steel. On the other side are most of the big steel companies and their friends in the War Production Board who are suspected of not wanting the iron and steel industry to shift away from big blast furnace production in the Pittsburgh, Youngstown, Cleveland areas.

The row has many other ramifications, one of them being whether the $1-a-year men represent themselves or the Government. Another is why we have a desperate steel shortage when millions of tons of iron ore lie untouched in the Far West, where it could be developed by the cheap, quick sponge iron process. The question is not entirely geographical, however, for sponge iron plants can be built anywhere.

The row is expected to break when the Boykin Committee, investigating steel shortages, will summon officials of the Republic Steel Co., which wants to build a sponge iron plant; and two WPB officials who have opposed the project.

The two opposing officials are W. A. Hauck of WPB's Steel Facilities Unit, and S. O. Hobart of the Blast Furnace Unit. They oppose sponge iron as an "unsound innovation."

SPONGE VS. BLAST FURNACES

However, the Boykin Committee wants to examine them closely as to whether they are not chiefly opposed to breaking the hold of certain big steel companies, which don't want competition from low grade ores, developed by a cheaper process throughout the country.

Also the Committee may want to probe into the fact that Hauck was formerly an accountant with Bethlehem Steel, while Hobart was president of the Troy, N. Y., Furnace corporation, makers of blast furnaces and coke ovens. The new sponge iron process offers competition to the blast furnace process.

Republic wants to establish a sponge iron plant in Canton to produce 100 tons a day. But they were turned down of priorities for 170 tons of steel to build the plant. In other words, the new Republic plant would have produced 200 tons in two days, enough to build itself—but was vetoed because of the steel shortage.

One great advantage of sponge steel plants is that they require little steel for construction. Yet WPB has blocked them for months.

Note: Engineer for Republic in the proposed new plant is H. A. Brassert, who has built steel mills all over the world, even undertook construction of the Hermann Goering works in Germany after being urged to do so by Prime Minister Chamberlain as part of British appeasement policy.

COMMUNITY COOPERATION

The town of Baker, Ore., already has taken a leaf from President Roosevelt's recent radio advice on community cooperation.

Located in the lumber area, Baker never had any manufacturing. But Baker business men decided to build a plant and get a war contract. Fact is, they got the contract first—to build wooden bodies for big eight-wheel Army trucks—and then started building the factory.

A local engineer, who had been to Russia to help the Soviets build factories out of nothing, laid out a plan to do the same thing in Baker.

For an overhead conveyor, the builders got meat hooks from a butcher shop, and built a trolley for the hooks out of old pipe and angle iron. To paint the truck bodies, they built a big tank filled it with paint, and dipped the bodies in it.

To operate the hoisting mechanism over this tank, a compressor was made from the air cylinders of abandoned Sumter Valley railroad cars. A conveyor was made with the leather belt from an abandoned gold dredge.

Before they were through, one of Baker's citizens remarked that not since the days of Al Baba and the Forty Thieves had so many things been "stolen" (with permission) from the nearby countryside.

This improvised "factory" is turning out auto bodies for the Army at a saving of slightly over

STEEL SHORTAGE PROBE

The long-smouldering row over whether the nation should build quick new sponge iron mills and also develop its isolated and Far Western iron deposits will flare into the open in Congress next week.

On one-side of the row are Far Western and Southern Congressmen, plus Secretary Ickes, plus Republic Steel. On the other side are most of the big steel companies and their friends in the War Production Board who are suspected of not wanting the iron and steel industry to shift away from big blast furnace production in the Pittsburgh, Youngstown, Cleveland areas.

The row has many other ramifications, one of them being whether the $1-a-year men represent themselves or the Government. Another is why we have a desperate steel shortage when millions

WESTERNER HELD PENDING PROBE OF ACTIVITIES

Wallace McDougall, 60, a native of Helena, Montana, but more recently a resident of Lexington, Ky., is under arrest in Pickaway county jail awaiting action by federal postal officials following his apprehension Thursday afternoon in Washington township. McDougall was picked up by Deputy Bryan Custer after he was reported by Ringgold pike residents to have been tampering with mail boxes at the Evans and Sparks farms.

Custer said McDougall, who listed his occupation as a commercial artist, is a "floater." McDougall told the deputy that he had been employed by several newspapers throughout the country, but that in recent months only employment he could find was painting mail boxes. The deputy notified the postal inspector in Columbus of the man's arrest.

CHICKENS STOLEN

Marvin Dumm, Pickaway township, reported to the sheriff's office Friday that 47 barred rock chickens, including 24 roosters and 23 pullets, had been stolen from his farm last Sunday. He did not say why the theft was not reported earlier. The chickens had been roosting in the hog house, Dumm told the authorities.

en bodies for big eight-wheel Army trucks—and then started building the factory.

A local engineer, who had been to Russia to help the Soviets build factories out of nothing, laid out a plan to do the same thing in Baker.

For an overhead conveyor, the builders got meat hooks from a butcher shop, and built a trolley for the hooks out of old pipe and angle iron. To paint the truck bodies, they built a big tank filled it with paint, and dipped the bodies in it.

To operate the hoisting mechanism over this tank, a compressor was made from the air cylinders of abandoned Sumter Valley railroad cars. A conveyor was made with the leather belt from an abandoned gold dredge.

Before they were through, one of Baker's citizens remarked that not since the days of Al Baba and the Forty Thieves had so many things been "stolen" (with permission) from the nearby countryside.

This improvised "factory" is turning out auto bodies for the Army at a saving of slightly over

WEST VIRGINIAN HELD ON CHARGE OF FORGERY

Charged with forgery of the name of Cleve Smith, Madison township, to a $24.20 check, Clarence Snyder, 20, of Parkersburg, W. Va., was lodged in Pickaway county jail Thursday afternoon. Snyder was arrested by Franklin county authorities at the Astor hotel, 32 East Main street, Columbus.

The check was cashed by David H. Ebert, Ashville merchant. Snyder was employed at one time by Smith, county authorities said.

rived on the scene or were en route.
The course of the battle so far has demonstrated that bombers alone cannot halt the Japanese warships, military experts said. They expect a great naval battle to develop, for it is clear the enemy is determined to recapture Guadalcanal, and equally certain that the allied high command will make every effort to stop them.

Cologne Pasted
A heavy force of British bombers, possibly 400, blasted at Cologne and other Rhineland industrial centers in a night attack. It was the first raid on Cologne since large areas of the city were laid in waste in the first 1,000-plane raid in the history of warfare. Eighteen RAF bombers were lost.

Land fighting on New Guinea is on a mounting scale with larger forces engaged on both sides, Gen. Douglas MacArthur's headquarters reported today. The Australian jungle fighters have advanced to within 12 miles of Kokoda, the Japanese base at the foot of the north slope of the Owen Stanley range.

Jap Bases Hit
Allied air attacks on enemy bases continued with raids reported on Salamaus, on New Guinea, on Timor and on Faisi island in the northern Solomons. An enemy light cruiser was hit and halted and presumably heavily damaged at Faisi.

Lieut. Gen. Joseph W. Stilwell's headquarters reported that American bombers had caused heavy damage at Lashio in North Burma, scoring hits on the airfield and setting warehouses afire.
As the fighting spread and grew more violent a Zurich report said Finland has asked Pope Pius XII to intercede with Britain and the United States to help her get favorable separate peace terms with Russia.

HE CHASES BOYS, SHERIFF CHASES HIM; HE LOSES

Sheriff Charles H. Radcliff credited a group of East Corwin street youngsters, Friday, with helping him arrest William Jackson, 440 East Union street, for operating a motor vehicle without lights.

The sheriff saw Jackson's car pass him on a southbound street Thursday evening, and he observed that not a light was burning on the car. Radcliff started to chase the dark automobile and was following it east on Corwin street when the youngsters came to his aid. The boys were playing in the street and as Jackson drove past some of them tossed sand at his car. The driver stopped and started to chase some of the sand throwers, and that is where the sheriff entered the picture.

He arrested Jackson, who gave him age as 19, and lodged him in jail. Squire B. T. Hedges fined him $10 and costs.

Another angle entered the case Friday when Jackson's mother told authorities that he is only 15 years old. If that fact is determined the charge against him will be transferred to juvenile court.

RUSSIANS GIVE GROUND BEFORE HARD ASSAULT

rived on the scene or were en route.

The course of the battle so far has demonstrated that bombers alone cannot halt the Japanese warships, military experts said. They expect a great naval battle to develop, for it is clear the enemy is determined to recapture Guadalcanal, and equally certain that the allied high command will make every effort to stop them.

Cologne Pasted

A heavy force of British bombers, possibly 400, blasted at Cologne and other Rhineland industrial centers in a night attack. It was the first raid on Cologne since large areas of the city were laid in waste in the first 1,000-plane raid in the history of warfare. Eighteen RAF bombers were lost.

Land fighting on New Guinea is on a mounting scale with larger forces engaged on both sides, Gen. Douglas MacArthur's headquarters reported today. The Australian jungle fighters have advanced to within 12 miles of Kokoda, the Japanese base at the foot of the north slope of the Owen Stanley range.

Jap Bases Hit

Allied air attacks on enemy bases continued with raids reported on Salamaua, on New Guinea, on Timor and on Faisi Island in the northern Solomons. An enemy light cruiser was hit and halted and presumably heavily damaged at Faisi.

Lieut. Gen. Joseph W. Stilwell's headquarters reported that American bombers had caused heavy damage at Lashio in North Burma, scoring hits on the airfield and setting warehouses afire.

As the fighting spread and grew more violent a Zurich report said Finland has asked Pope Pius XII to intercede with Britain and the United States to help her get favorable separate peace terms with Russia.

HE CHASES BOYS, SHERIFF CHASES HIM; HE LOSES

Sheriff Charles H. Radcliff credited a group of East Corwin street youngsters, Friday, with helping him arrest William Jackson, 440 East Union street, for operating a motor vehicle without lights.

The sheriff saw Jackson's car pass him on a southeast street Thursday evening, and he observed that not a light was burning on the car. Radcliff started to chase the dark automobile and was following it east on Corwin street when the youngsters came to his aid. The boys were playing in the street and as Jackson drove past some of them tossed sand at his car. The driver stopped and started to chase some of the sand throwers, and that is where the sheriff entered the picture.

He arrested Jackson, who gave him age as 19, and lodged him in jail. Squire B. T. Hedger fined him $10 and costs.

Another angle entered the case Friday when Jackson's mother told authorities that he is only 15 years old. If that fact is determined the charge against him will be transferred to juvenile court.

WORLD AT A GLANCE

WASHINGTON—To unify organized labor, provided it can be done at all, it is beginning to be argued among followers of President John L. Lewis of the United Mine Workers of America, that John will have to take personal charge of the whole job instead of attempting it in partnership with some other leader or two.

Lewis, a neighbor of mine at his home in Alexandria, Va., is an exceedingly likeable chap personally, but pretty positive in his ideas and strongly disinclined to make compromises with folk who dissent from any of 'em.

His UMW's original break with the American Federation of Labor was illustrative of it.

The A. F. of L., headed by President William Green, and with which the UMW was associated, is organized on craft lines. That is to say, a single industry may employ several different crafts. For example, mining includes actual diggers, electricians, blacksmiths and others. The A. F. of L.'s system has been to unionize 'em independently of one another.

John Lewis' thesis is that it's best to combine 'em, per industry, collectively.

He formed the Committee on Industrial Organization to effect the rearrangement. William Green's A. F. of L., however, balked. Thereupon, under John's direction, the

John L. Lewis

UMW seceded from the A. F. of L., inviting labor groups generally to join, as members of what, to preserve the original C. I. O. initials, was christened the Congress of Industrial Organizations.

It was an important development in the labor field and, as a newspaperman, I kept a sharp eye on it, infesting UMW-CIO headquarters copiously.

Murray Takes Over

Among those closely identified with the movement was Philip Murray, a UMW vice president and apparently a 100 per cent John L. Lewisite. Just why John didn't assume the CIO presidency for himself I don't exactly understand, but probably he considered it a detail that he thought he was too busy, as main boss, to bother with.

The difficulty was that Phil didn't long continue to be as compliant with John's orders as the latter evidently had expected. John, angered, so expressed himself. Phil's answer back. The upshot was that the UMW's leadership presently abolished Phil as a vice president of its own aggregation. In convention, subsequently, the whole UMW indorsed this dismissal and, furthermore, entirely severed its connection with the CIO.

Speculation's rife as to what will follow.

One theory is that Lewis' policy will reunite the A. F. of L. and the CIO.

This doesn't seem so certain, though. There still remains between 'em the issue of craft versus industrial unionism. Phil's anti-craft and pro-industrial as John Lewis. Anyway, he's seemed so thus far that wasn't the question that he and John differed on, Phil and Will Green apparently are as far apart on it as ever.

John's accused of aiming at the creation of a brand-new, third labor outfit that he'll dominate completely.

And ultimately, it's assumed, his ambition to assemble the total labor situation under his own personal thumb—no CIO, no A. F. of L.—a dictatorship, subject to himself alone.

A Good Economist

Far be it from me to deny that he's arbitrary.

He's a middling good economist, though.

He recognizes that labor's got to be sensible toward capital—that capital's an asset of labor, too.

There's nothing selfish about the cuss.

I never heard him charged with making any money out of his job. He doesn't try to take political advantage of it, either.

I once heard him speak of Samuel Gompers as "a really great man."

And the emphasis was on the word "really." I don't know whether he meant to distinguish between Sam and some others or not.

He dates back to Sam's day, anyhow.

You can disagree with him, but his record's pretty clean.

A. F. of L. President Bill Green expresses himself as willing to harmonize.

I don't think it's likely that he and John will be able to do it, but it'll be creditable to 'em if they can. Bill's a placable chap. He'll need to be a lot so, nevertheless, to get along, for more than a week or two, with John Lewis.

The form of this festival may change, but the substance may remain, shaped by repetition and experiment into a regular practice of conserving useful metals. A tremendous lot of building and replacement will have to be done, and for years there may be as great a scarcity and as high a premium on common metals as there is now. There will also be premiums on many other things to a degree not now foreseen. Scarcities and high taxes may last long. Plain living and high thinking may be imposed, by circumstances and common sense, for a generation. Optimistic prophecies of a heaven on earth when this war chapter is ended may be "the bunk." On the other hand, a modest re-reading of the foregoing lines suggests that this present excursion into pessimistic prophecy may itself prove to be the bunk. One never can tell what miracles of reconstruction and expansion may be accomplished when a strong, young nation is set free from fear. The glory of ancient Greece after the defeat of Persia furnishes a good example. Freedom from fear would be a great stimulant for the civilized arts.

You have been doing a swell job since the bond selling campaign started last Spring, even though your work meant diligent effort to sell a dime stamp here and a quarter stamp there. I feel certain that every person on your Daily Herald route who has bought stamps from you feels proud that he or she has been instrumental in helping you win the honor so richly deserved.

Geriatrics A Study of Old-Age Ills

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

THE INTRODUCTION of the new medical specialty of geriatrics and the new science of gerontology is a natural result of the enormous relative increase in the older population group.

Geriatrics is the study of diseases among the aged, and gerontology is the study of the aging process itself. Whether they ever establish themselves as definite specialties is open to some doubt, well expressed by my friend, Dr. Harry Beckman, of Milwaukee, in his classic textbook, "Treatment in General Practice."

Dr. Beckman says that young men are being urged to specialize in geriatrics as they used to be in pediatrics, the specialty of the diseases of childhood. But as far as the future of the two specialties is concerned, pediatrics is more successful because, first, the child has no objection to being a child and knows he will soon get over it, whereas the older has been dreading age all his life and knows it will continue and get worse. Furthermore, old people don't like to admit they are old, and don't like it known that they are being attended by an "old age" specialist.

Dr. Clendening will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Dr. Clendening has seven pamphlets which can be obtained by request. Each pamphlet sells for 10 cents. For any one pamphlet desired, send 10 cents in coin, and a self-addressed envelope stamped with a three-cent stamp, to Dr. Logan Clendening, in care of this paper. The pamphlets are: "Three Weeks' Reducing Diet," "Indigestion and Constipation," "Reducing the 'Dining,'" "Infant Feeding," "Instructions for the Treatment of Diabetes," "Feminine Hygiene" and "The Care of the Hair and Skin."

SYNOPSIS

Following her mother's death, red-haired, slim
MARY DEXTER leaves Omaha to take a job in the Nordex Aircraft plant in California. She shares an apartment with FRAN BOND, night club singer and dancer. Friendship develops between Mary and KEN GRANT, young mechanical engineer, also newly employed at Nordex. Mary has been attracted to BRUCE MARTIN, Nordex test pilot, over whom a dark cloud seems to hover.

YESTERDAY: Mary realizes that Fran is in love.

CHAPTER THIRTEEN

MARY WAS NOT kidding herself. She knew her peace of mind and contentment was based on her seeing Bruce Martin. Their casual, happenchance meetings at the lunch room in the evening had become an established routine. For five nights now he had taken the trouble to make the date definite. "Nine tomorrow night?"

And Mary would answer lightly, her heart singing, "Okay. Bye."

The evenings of work flew by. It was just a matter of a few short hours till the 9 o'clock lunch period, and the glow from seeing him carried her through the remaining hours of work. Her happiness shone from her, changed her from the stiff, unfriendly girl she had been when she first entered the personnel department into an eager, co-operative worker.

Connie, the lead girl, began to depend on her more and more. She knew she would spare no pains to help new girls learn the routine, give them assurance and skill in the new work. And this was important to Connie—because she knew how much efficiency depended on confidence, how much time could be lost because an inexperienced helper had been afraid to ask a question.

And, as the terrific production program of Nordex moved slowly into high gear, Connie's spirits soared. To her, every streamlined plane that moved off the assembly line was an answer to the promise she made to her Marine husband in Iceland every night in the darkness of her bedroom. "We're sending help—we're sending help—just a little longer, honey, and we'll send you plenty of help."

One evening Mary paused at Connie's desk to ask if she might change her lunch hour that night to ten. Connie's martinet attitude toward any variation in schedule reassured itself automatically. "An imperative reason?" she snapped.

Mary faltered, then said with quiet honesty, "No—just a date." She wanted to add that she was sorry she had brought up the subject and was turning back to her desk when the lead girl's voice stopped her. Startled, she looked at Connie.

Connie was smiling at her. "If it's that—important," she said quietly, "take your lunch hour at ten tonight."

Color flamed into Mary's face, as she smiled back at Connie. "Thanks," she said softly, and fled to her desk.

Connie's eyes followed her with a new understanding. Because she, herself, was so personally involved in this work, she understood suddenly why Mary's attitude had changed—she had her heart in her work. I should meddle with an influence as useful as that, Connie thought with fond amusement.

At ten Mary was in the washroom, patting her shining cap of hair into place, brushing fastidiously at her brown sweater and green, brown and gold plaid skirt that made her look like an exquisite schoolgirl.

One of the girls at the mirror winked at another. "Test pilots must have bird eyes," she cracked. "If they can see a speck of dust on a suit as immaculate as that one."

She laughed as Mary's green eyes opened in startled surprise.

"Never mind, Mary," the second girl comforted. "It's a bad case of sour grapes. If a certain test pilot ever looked her way, she'd spend all evening getting ready to go to lunch."

As the three walked to the lunchroom together, Mary was filled with a fresh wave of happiness. Everyone was so good to her, even Connie—Connie, the martinet, had understood. And when they entered the lunchroom and Bruce moved from a couple of fellows to join her at the counter, her heart swelled to the point of pain with his joy. She didn't notice the scowl on his face; she saw only his tall, careless grace as he lounged over toward the line at the cafeteria counter, the flash of his quick smile, not the turbulent, angry fires in his dark eyes. In the line of office workers and mechanics, Bruce stood out in bold relief—the bronzed skin of an outdoor man, the arrogance of his carriage, the poise and magnetism of a personality sure of its worth, independent of others about him.

But when she heard his voice, she knew he was in one of his black moods. He slammed the tray along the counter viciously. "Pantysists!" he muttered.

"What's the matter?" Mary asked. The question had been automatic, but in another minute she was regretting bitterly that she had asked it. She hadn't really expected an answer, but Bruce was talking—and not making any attempt to keep others from hearing. "Can't make up their minds when a job's ready to test. The way they keep checking and re-checking, you'd think it were a county fair."

"It's more than that, Martin. It's a war." The short answer was weighted with rebuke. It was given by the overalled mechanic just behind Martin in the line.

Bruce went around and glared at the man belligerently. "So what?" he demanded.

The mechanic shrugged. He was a middle-aged man with tired creases lining his face. He didn't want the spotlight his impulsive words had thrown him into. As heads craned from every direction, he replied wearily, "So we've got to all fall in line, that's all."

"Thanks for the pep talk, Grandpa," Bruce Martin gave a snort of laughter and, as Mary urged him quietly, picked up his tray and followed her to their table.

Mary was trembling. The cloud was nearer—this sudden lull in conversation in the lunchroom, the surreptitious glances of the workers upon them as they made their way to their table told her again her hour of shattered happiness was almost over. Bruce Martin was definitely under some public scrutiny. This was not the first time trouble had threatened to break out in the lunchroom. Some day, she knew, in one of these clashes, suspicion would burst into accusation and Bruce undoubtedly would act with his usual raw violence. From that moment on, he would be a marked man. Mary felt frightened, helpless. She didn't know what he had done and she admitted she was a coward. She didn't want to know. She only wanted to push back the time of reckoning to the last possible minute.

Tonight Bruce was

Plain living and high thinking may be imposed, by circumstances and common sense, for a generation. Optimistic prophecies of a heaven on earth when this war chapter is ended may be "the bunk." On the other hand, a modest re-reading of the foregoing lines suggests that this present excursion into pessimistic prophecy may itself prove to be the bunk. One never can tell what miracles of reconstruction and expansion may be accomplished when a strong, young nation is set free from fear. The glory of ancient Greece after the defeat of Persia furnishes a good example. Freedom from fear would be a great stimulant for the civilized arts.

TO HOWARD GLITT

YOUNGSTER: Orchid of the week goes to you for the honor you received when the "Supreme War Bond Champion" title was voted you by regional leaders in the state's campaign to sell bonds and stamps in the interest of Uncle Sam's war effort. You have been doing a swell job since the bond selling campaign started last Spring, even though your work meant diligent effort to sell a dime stamp here and a quarter stamp there. I feel certain that every person on your Daily Herald route who has bought stamps from you feels proud that he or she has been instrumental in helping you win the honor so richly deserved.

WORLD AT A GLANCE

—By—
Charles P. Stewart

John L. Lewis

WASHINGTON—To unify organized labor, provided it can be done at all, it's beginning to be argued among followers of President John L. Lewis of the United Mine Workers of America, that John will have to take personal charge of the whole job instead of attempting it in partnership with some other leader or two. Lewis, a neighbor of mine at his home in Alexandria, Va., is an exceedingly likable chap personally, but pretty positive in his ideas and strongly disinclined to make compromises with folk who dissent from any of 'em. His UMW's original break with the American Federation of Labor was illustrative of it. The A. F. of L., headed by President William Green, and with which the UMW was associated, is organized on craft lines. That is to say, a single industry may employ several different crafts. For example, mining includes actual diggers, electricians, blacksmiths and others. The A. F. of L.'s system has been to unionize 'em independently of one another. John Lewis' thesis is that it's best to combine 'em, per industry, collectively. He formed the Committee on Industrial Organization to effect the rearrangement. William Green's A. F. of L., however, balked. Thereupon, under John's direction, the UMW seceded from the A. F. of L., inviting labor groups generally to join, as members of what, to preserve the original C. I. O. initials, was christened the Congress of Industrial Organizations. It was an important development in the labor field and, as a newspaperman, I kept a sharp eye on it, infesting UMW-CIO headquarters copiously. Among those closely identified with the movement was Philip Murray, a UMW vice president and apparently a 100 per cent John L. Lewisite. Just why John didn't assume the CIO presidency for himself I don't exactly understand, but probably he considered it a detail that he thought he was too busy, as main boss, to bother with. The difficulty was that Phil didn't long continue to be as compliant with John's orders as the latter evidently had expected. John, angered so, expressed himself. Phil assented back. The upshot was that the UMW's leadership presently abolished Phil as a vice president of its own aggregation. In convention, subsequently, the whole UMW endorsed this dismissal and, furthermore, entirely severed its connection with the CIO.

Speculation's rife as to what will follow. One theory is that Lewis' policy will reunite the A. F. of L. and the CIO. This doesn't seem so certain, though. There still remains between 'em the issue of craft versus industrial unionism. Phil's as anti-craft and pro-industrial as John Lewis. Anyway, he's seemed so thus far. That wasn't the question that he and John differed on. Phil and Will Green apparently are as far apart on it as ever.

John's accused of aiming at the creation of a brand-new, third labor outfit that he'll dominate completely.

And ultimately, it's assumed, his ambition's to assemble the total labor situation under his own personal thumb—no CIO, no A. F. of L.—a dictatorship, subject to himself alone.

A Good Economist

Far be it from me to deny that he's arbitrary.

He's a middling good economist, though.

He recognizes that labor's got to be sensible toward capital—that capital's an asset of labor, too. There's nothing selfish about the cuss.

I never heard him charged with making any money out of his job. He doesn't try to take political advantage of it, either.

I once heard him speak of Samuel Gompers as "a really great man."

And the emphasis was on the word "really." I don't know whether he meant to distinguish between Sam and some others or not.

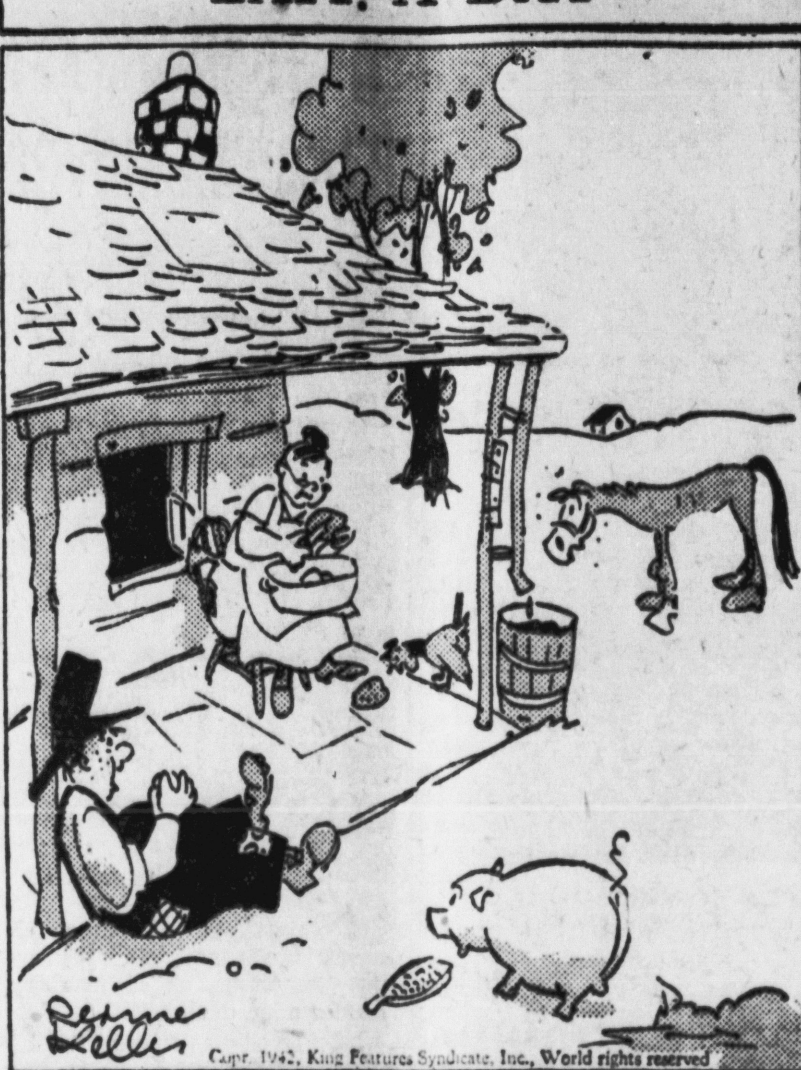

He dates back to Sam's day, anyhow. You can disagree with him, but his record's pretty clean.

A. F. of L. President Bill Green expresses himself as willing to harmonize.

I don't think it's likely that he and John will be able to do it, but it'll be creditable to 'em if they can. Bill's a placable chap. He'll need to be a lot so, nevertheless, to get along, for more than a week or two, with John Lewis.

Bill's kindly. John's anything but that.

Geriatrics A Study of Old-Age Ills

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

THE INTRODUCTION of the new medical specialty of geriatrics and the new science of gerontology is a natural result of the enormous relative increase in the older population group.

Geriatrics is the study of diseases among the aged, and geron-

Dr. Clendening will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

logy is the study of the aging process itself. Whether they will ever establish themselves as definite specialties is open to some doubt, well expressed by my friend, Dr. Harry Beckman, of Milwaukee, in his classic textbook, "Treatment in General Practice." Dr. Beckman says that young men are being urged to specialize in geriatrics as they used to be in pediatrics, the specialty of the diseases of childhood. But as far as the future of the two specialties is concerned, pediatrics is more successful because, first, the child has no objection to being a child and knows he will soon get over it, whereas the older has been dealing with age all his life and knows it will continue and get worse. Furthermore, old people don't like to admit they are old, and don't like it known that they are being attended by an "old age" specialist.

Hope for Children

Then the child has resilience on his side and there is more hope in treating it. You are saving him for something, if it is only for the future. And finally, old people are really not subject to any special diseases, while children are.

On the good side is that old people are very grateful for the comfort that some of the little tricks the geriatrician uses in treatment give. And from the doctor's standpoint there is an advantage, in that a man of fifty is likely to be better paid than a kid of five.

In a symposium on geriatrics held at the College of Physicians the following points were brought out:

All the tissues of the body do not age at the same rate. The aging process is poorly understood, and is probably dependent on the natural shrinkage of the collagen tissue.

There is little relation between nutrition and longevity, but heredity plays a basic part.

Diseases of Old Age

Specialists in geriatrics do not believe in retirement from active life for elderly people unless it is absolutely necessary. It should, at any rate, be very gradual and bedside, is now almost impossible.

The age at which a person becomes a geriatric patient is sixty. The common diseases among old people are of the heart, circulation, respiratory system, chronic cough and bronchitis, locomotor system, cancer (15 per cent), eyes and ears, diabetes, mental disturbance and alcoholism.

The aged stand surgery well and drugs poorly. The prime physical characteristics of healthy old people are that they have good teeth and eat good breakfasts.

The advantageous mental and emotional qualities of older people are poise, judgment, staying on the job, optimism and "slow to anger."

In diet do not allow the elderly to take too much liquid and soft food. Try food that is stimulating to the appetite.

Road to Romance

LOIS EBY and JOHN C. FLEMING

SYNOPSIS
Following her mother's death, red-haired, blind
MARY DIETER leaves Omaha to take a job in the Nordex Aircraft plant in California. She shares an apartment with FRAN BOND, night club singer and dancer. Friendship develops between Mary and KEN GRANT, young mechanical engineer, also newly employed at Nordex. Mary has been attracted to
BRUCE MARTIN, Nordex test pilot, over whom a dark cloud seems to hover.
YESTERDAY: Mary realizes that Fran is in love.

CHAPTER THIRTEEN
MARY WAS not kidding herself. She knew her peace of mind and contentment was based on her seeing Bruce Martin. Their casual, happenstance meetings at the lunch room in the evening had become an established routine. For five nights now he had taken the trouble to make the date definite. "Nine tomorrow night?" And Mary would answer lightly, her heart singing, "Okay, Bye." The evenings of work flew by. It was just a matter of a few short hours till the 9 o'clock lunch period, and the glow from seeing him carried her through the remaining hours of work. Her happiness shone from her, changed her from the stiff, unfriendly girl she had been when she first entered the personnel department into an eager, co-operative worker.

Connie, the lead girl, began to depend on her more and more. She knew she would spare no pains to help new girls learn the routine, give them assurance and skill in the new work. And this was important to Connie—because she knew how much efficiency depended on confidence, how much time could be lost because an inexperienced helper had been afraid to ask a question.

And, as the terrific production program of Nordex moved slowly into high gear, Connie's spirits soared. To her, every streamlined plane that moved off the assembly line was an answer to the promise she made to her Marine husband in Iceland every night in the darkness of her bedroom. "We're sending help—we're sending help—just a little longer, honey, and we'll send you plenty of help."

One evening Mary paused at Connie's desk to ask if she might change her lunch hour that night to ten. Connie's martinet attitude toward any variation in schedule reassured itself automatically.

"An imperative reason?" she snapped.

Mary faltered, then said with quiet honesty, "No—just a date." She wanted to add that she was sorry she had brought up the subject and was turning back to her desk when the lead girl's voice stopped her. Startled, she looked at Connie.

Connie was smiling at her. "If it's that important," she said quietly, "take your lunch hour at ten tonight." Color flamed into Mary's face, as she smiled back at Connie. "Thanks," she said softly, and fled to her desk.

Connie's eyes followed her with a new understanding. Because she, herself, was so personally involved in this work, she understood suddenly why Mary's attitude had changed—she had her heart in her work. I should meddle with an influence as useful as that, Connie thought with fond amusement.

At ten Mary was in the washroom, patting her shining cap of hair into place, brushing fastidiously at her brown sweater and green, brown and gold plaid skirt that made her look like an exquisite schoolgirl.

One of the girls at the mirror winked at another. "Test pilots must have bird eyes," she cracked. "If they can see a speck of dust on a suit as immaculate as that one." She laughed as Mary's green eyes opened in startled surprise.

"Never mind, Mary," the second girl comforted. "It's a bad case of sour grapes. If a certain test pilot ever looked her way, she'd spend all evening getting ready to go to lunch."

As the three walked to the lunchroom together, Mary was filled with a fresh wave of happiness. Everyone was so good to her, even Connie—Connie, the martinet, had understood. And when they entered the lunchroom and Bruce moved from a couple of fellows to join her at the counter, her heart swelled to the point of pain with its joy. She didn't notice the scowl on his face; she saw only his tall, careless grace as he lounged over toward the line at the cafeteria counter, the flash of his quick smile, not the turbulent, angry frown in his dark eyes. In the line of office workers and mechanics, Bruce stood out in bold relief—the bronzed skin of an outdoor man, the arrogance of his carriage, the poise and magnetism of a personality sure of its worth, independent of others about him.

But when she heard his voice, she knew he was in one of his black moods. He slammed the tray along the counter viciously. "Pantywaists!" he muttered.

"What's the matter?" Mary asked. The question had been automatic, but in another minute she was regretting bitterly that she had asked it. He hadn't really expected an answer, but Bruce was talking—and not making any attempt to keep others from hearing.

"Can't make up their minds when a job's ready to test. The way they keep checking and re-checking, you'd think it were a county fair."

"It's more than that, Martin. It's a war." The short answer was weighted with rebuke. It was given by the overalled mechanic just behind Bruce in the line.

Bruce whirled around to glare at the man belittlingly. "So what?" he demanded.

City Business Women Stage Annual Dinner

History Of Club Outlined By Speaker

Observance of National Business Women's Week, October 11 to 17, was climaxed by the Circleville Business and Professional Women's club at its annual public relations' dinner Thursday at Mrs. Marion's party home. "Women's Work in the War", the study theme for the year, was accentuated in the program during which several women of the community spoke. Mrs. Virginia Kitzmiller, Field Representative of the National American Red Cross, was unable to appear as guest speaker.

Miss Rose Good, president of the club, presented Mrs. Anna Chandler as general chairman. In her introductory talk, Mrs. Chandler reviewed the history of B. and P. W. clubs, told how club women were assisting in the War effort, read the proclamations of President Roosevelt and Governor Bricker concerning public relations week, and discussed enlistment of women in War Work in its fullest sense. She stressed the fact that as more men leave for the War front, more women are needed for the home front.

Mrs. W. E. Caskey, Pickaway county production chairman of the Red Cross, told of women of the county engaged in knitting and in sewing and said that 7,000 production hours had gone into the shipment of knitting and 5,455 hours of sewing into the garments that had been shipped from the local unit recently.

Mrs. A. Hulise Hays, knitting chairman, told of the 200 knitters in the county, mentioning one as turning out one turtle neck sweater each week. She told of the need for home knitted garments and said the pleas for the various articles for both Army and Navy use were getting stronger all the time. These home knitted garments are not sold but given to members of the Armed Forces. She announced that those wishing to take up knitting would be provided needles, wool yarn and taught to do the work.

Mrs. George Steeley, sewing chairman, discussed the garments being made in the chapter room, this list including overalls, shirts, operating gowns, slips, petticoats, women's dresses, gowns and bed jackets. More sewers could be used in this project, according to Mrs. Steeley.

Mrs. Harry Heffner, chairman of the Home Nursing project, announced that three classes had completed the training course and that another would be started in a short time.

Mrs. Lawrence Goeller and Mrs. Christian Schwarz, graduate nurses and teachers of Home Nursing classes, told in detail of the work of instruction and discussed the value of these courses in the health program of homes.

Miss Agnes Butch, Pickaway county executive secretary for the Red Cross, told interesting features of her work as it concerned men in the Armed Forces and their dependents.

SOCIAL CALENDAR

Observance of National Business Women's Week, October 11 to 17, was climaxed by the Circleville Business and Professional Women's club at its annual public relations' dinner Thursday at Mrs. Marion's party home. Only Thing Sure is That Games Start on Time

By Jack Mahon

NEW YORK, Oct. 16—Well, boys, here we go again. Having been let down with a resounding thud by our usually faithful crystal ball last Saturday, we are keeping it in solitary confinement for 10 days on a diet of second-guesses, bread and water, and this week end will do our four star experting without the aid of man, beast or hat-pin.

Any resemblance to the actual outcome of the nation's grid games Saturday found herein is purely coincidental for football form this season has even the most veteran coaches talking to themselves. About all anyone can be certain of is that the games will start on time.

The first three weeks of the season have produced so many upsets it is hard to imagine just what will happen. We're playing a hunch, however, that this will be a form Saturday with the favorites recovering from their attack of buck fever and the jitters, to wreak revenge on the under-dogs who have been howling with glee thus far.

Have yourself some winners—we hope.

East

Army-Columbia: Army. Fordham-West Virginia: The Rams can't lose them all—or can they?

Penn-Princeton: The Quakers are the team to beat in the Ivy league and should win off by themselves.

Navy-Yale: The Sailors have too many guns for the poor Elis. Boston College-Nor Carolina: preflight: Boston College led by Pete Holovac will hand Jimmy Crowley's club its first defeat in a real thriller.

Dartmouth-Harvard: We think the Crimson is ready to win. Holy Cross-Syracuse: If we were real devilish we'd pick a tie here.

Middle-West

Indiana-Pittsburgh: Mr. Hillenbrand goes to town. The Hoosiers are loaded with speed this year and shouldn't have too much trouble with the Panthers, who like the old grey mare, ain't what they used to be.

Illinois-Iowa: We'll string with Iowa. Minnesota-Nebraska: The Gophers had the bottom yanked out from under them last week and we have a hunch they'll take it out on Nebraska.

In other games in this area we think Wisconsin too strong for Great Lakes; Michigan a bit better than Northwestern, but it's very close; Ohio State easy over Purdue; Missouri to trounce Kansas State and Oklahoma to Drub Kansas.

South And Southwest

Alabama should make it four straight with a win over Tennessee and Georgia shouldn't have any trouble with Tulane in the big games in the South. Down Texas way Texas should break out in a scoring rash and belt over Arkansas while Texas Christian should nose out Texas A. & M. in a red-hot scoring battle. Temple and Southern Methodist figures to be a toss-up with the Methodists getting a slight nod from this corner.

Far West

The UCLANS of U. C. L. A. certainly showed a lot of class last weekend in annihilating Oregon State, but they won't have a cinch this week and will be lucky to beat California's Golden Bears by a touchdown.

Oregon State, while not as potent as last year's outfit, will bounce back and take over Santa Clara.

Washington State is the team to beat in the conference and should continue its winning ways at the expense of U.S.C. the Washington Huskies will probably have a track meet with Montana and Stanford should finally break into the winning column with an easy conquest of Idaho.

'CATS EXPECT AIR RAID; TOM KUZMA TO PLAY

EVANSTON, Ill., Oct. 16—A grim squad of 34 Northwestern Wildcats, prepared to meet a strong aerial attack, was enroute today to Dearborn, Mich., where they will stop over for a workout before proceeding to Ann Arbor for the Michigan game. Defense against the Wolverine passing attack was stressed in the final Wildcat workout yesterday.

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Oct. 16—Michigan fans were assured today that the Wolverine ace, Tom Kuzma, will see action against Northwestern tomorrow. Coach Fritz Crisler said that, although Kuzma may not be in the starting lineup, he "definitely will play against the Wildcats."

T-FORMATION TOUGHER THAN LEARNING TO FLY

CHICAGO, Oct. 16—Players on the Chicago Bears football team reported today that Lieut. Ken Kavanaugh, who played with the pro champions in 1940 and 1941, still has a wholesome respect for the difficulties encountered on the gridiron. Kavanaugh, now a pilot in the air force, visited his old buddies

FOUR CONTESTS WIN SPOTLIGHT OF GRID STAGE

Bucks Expected To Take Purdue; Notre Dame, Seahawks Watched

By H. C. WARREN

CHICAGO, Oct. 16—Columbus, O., South Bend, Ind., Iowa City, Ia., and Chicago will share the spotlight tomorrow as eight teams go about the business of determining who's who in the Midwest gridiron picture.

Ohio State university, already regarded as the strongest offensive as well as defensive college team in the nation, opposes Purdue university, the eleven that started the Big Ten last week by upsetting Northwestern university, 7 to 6.

Purdue, although showing a great reversal of form after losing to Fordham and Vanderbilt and then beating Northwestern, does not figure to do much in the way of upsetting the Buckeyes. Coupled with the ground power of Gene Fekete and the aerial pitching of Paul Sarringhaus, the Buckeyes have a fast-charging line that minimizes the Bolle-makers' hopes for victory.

Outside of the passing of Angelo Bertelli, about the only thing Notre Dame has on its side against the Iowa Seahawks for tomorrow is tradition. This tradition revolves around the fact that a team coached by Lt. Col. Bernie Bierman, the Seahawk mentor, has never beaten Notre Dame.

On Chicago's lakefront at Soldier field, unbeaten Wisconsin will toss a triple H threat at Great Lakes—Pat Hardier, Elroy Hirsch and Mark Hoskins. Seemingly surrounded with a wealth of talent, Coach Paul D. (Tony) Hinkle of Great Lakes thus far has been unable to correlate his speed and talent into a fast moving machine.

Not Yet In Stride

After losing to Michigan, Great Lakes rebounded to whip Iowa and Pittsburgh, but the sailors haven't hit the stride of which they are believed capable.

Whether Illinois' feat in whipping Minnesota was a "shot in the dark" should be determined at Iowa City, where the Gophers conquerors meet up with the Hawkeyes. This game is regarded as a toss-up with its probable feature a scoring duel between Don Griffin of Illinois and Iowa's Tom Farmer. Illinois chances for winning seem to hinge on the ability of the Illinois to check the Iowa passing attack.

Northwestern faces a herculean task in attempting to defeat Michigan at Ann Arbor tomorrow. The Wolverines, with one of the best ground gaining teams in the middle west, will be fortified by the return of Tommy Kuzma, who has been sidelined all season with injuries. Kuzma will share the tailback chores with Bob Chappius and Don Robinson, any one of whom is capable of giving any team an interesting afternoon.

Northwestern, in its early games this year, has been handicapped by an inexperienced forward wall, incapable of proving much of an asset to the ground-gaining desires of the Wildcat scoring sparks, Otto Graham and "Buckets" Hirsch.

The other two Big Ten teams, Minnesota and Indiana go outside the conference tomorrow for competition. Minnesota is favored to defeat Nebraska by any score the Gophers desire, while Indiana is expected to defeat Pittsburgh.

HILLSBORO ACE LOST FOR REST OF 1942 SEASON

Gerald Bumgarner, brilliant Hillsboro fullback who starred in his team's 7-0 defeat here several weeks ago, is out of action for the season. Bumgarner suffered a broken collarbone last Friday night as his Indians fell before Wilmington.

The youth, who wore No. 13 jersey, was one of the finest gridgers to appear on the local field since Robin Friday of West Jefferson.

The injury came early in the third period and permitted Wilmington to come from behind, Bumgarner's loss taking all the sting out of Hillsboro's offensive and much power from its defense.

In Chicago and said before departing for Boston:

"I can tell you fellows one thing, it's a lot easier learning to fly than it is to master the mysteries of the T formation."

Only Thing Sure is That Games Start on Time

By Jack Mahon

NEW YORK, Oct. 16—Well, boys, here we go again.

Having been let down with a resounding thud by our usually faithful crystal ball last Saturday, we are keeping it in solitary confinement for 10 days on a diet of second-guesses, bread and water, and this week end will do our four star experting without the aid of man, beast or hat-pin.

Any resemblance to the actual outcome of the nation's grid games Saturday found herein is purely coincidental for football form this season has even the most veteran coaches talking to themselves. About all anyone can be certain of is that the games will start on time.

The first three weeks of the season have produced so many upsets it is hard to imagine just what will happen. We're playing a hunch, however, that this will be a form Saturday with the favorites recovering from their attack of buck fever and the jitters, to wreak revenge on the under-dogs who have been howling with glee thus far.

Have yourself some winners—we hope.

East

Army-Columbia: Army. Fordham-West Virginia: The Rams can't lose them all—or can they?

Penn-Princeton: The Quakers are the team to beat in the Ivy league and should win off by themselves.

Navy-Yale: The Sailors have too many guns for the poor Ellis.

Boston College-No. Carolina preflight: Boston College led by Pete Holovac will hand Jimmy Crowley's club its first defeat in a real thriller.

Dartmouth-Harvard: We think the Crimson is ready to win.

Holy Cross-Syracuse: If we were real devilish we'd pick a tie here.

Middle-West

Indiana-Pittsburgh: Mr. Hillenbrand goes to town. The Hoosiers are loaded with speed this year and shouldn't have too much trouble with the Panthers, who like the old grey mare, ain't what they used to be.

Illinois-Iowa: We'll string with Iowa.

Minnesota-Nebraska: The Gophers had the bottom yanked out from under them last week and we have a hunch they'll take it out on Nebraska.

In other games in this area we think Wisconsin too strong for Great Lakes; Michigan a bit better than Northwestern, but it's very close; Ohio State easy over Purdue; Missouri to trounce Kansas State and Oklahoma to Drub Kansas.

South And Southwest

Alabama should make it four straight with a win over Tennessee and Georgia shouldn't have any trouble with Tulane in the big games in the South. Down Texas way Texas should break out in a scoring rash and belt over Arkansas while Texas Christian should nose out Texas A. & M. in a red-hot scoring battle. Temple and Southern Methodist figures to be a toss-up with the Methodists getting a slight nod from this corner.

Far West

The UCLANS of U. C. L. A. certainly showed a lot of class last weekend in annihilating Oregon State, but they won't have a cinch this week and will be lucky to beat California's Golden Bears by a touchdown.

Oregon State, while not as potent as last year's outfit, will bounce back and take over Santa Clara.

Bus Runs to Washington C. H. Scheduled to Start Monday

WILLIAMSPORT, NEW HOLLAND ON REGULAR RUN

Provision Made For Service From Main Line For Folk Of Atlanta

FEDERAL REQUEST MET
Announcement Of Complete Schedule Set For Saturday By Officials

Bus service will be started Monday between Lancaster, Circleville and Washington C. H. by the Valley Public Service company. The route will include Williamsport and New Holland, but buses will not be permitted to leave Route 22 to include Atlanta. However, Atlanta folk wishing to use the buses will be picked up at a service station on the main highway.

Announcement of the new service was made by Valley Public Service officials Friday. They said that the schedule would be completed Saturday. Two round trips will be made each day between all points.

Bus officials declared that the route was being inaugurated at the request of Office of Defense Transportation officials who believe that the new route will permit persons in the villages along Route 22 to save tires and gasoline.

Some months ago the Valley Public Service bought the franchise of the Lancaster-Washington C. H. bus company which had been operating between Lancaster and Circleville. Although the company's franchise called for buses to Washington C. H., none had been operated. The Valley Public Service has continued the Lancaster-Circleville run, and now has decided to expand it.

It has long been felt here that a bus line running to Circleville from New Holland and Williamsport would be a help to retail business. Residents of the western part of the county have been urging a bus line for a long while, but until now have not had their wishes granted.

Bus company officials said that modern vehicles would be assigned to the Lancaster-Washington C. H. line.

About a year ago there was considerable competition for a bus line franchise through the district west of Circleville, several companies bidding for the right to operate there. At that time talk was current that Uncle Sam intended to construct a big Army camp in the Pickaway-Ross county area. The camp, according to reported plans, would have covered an area almost reaching Route 22 in Wayne township. However, that talk has died down.

Cook's confectionary will continue to be the ticket office for the line.

Valley Public Service already operates bus lines from Columbus to Chillicothe through Circleville and from Columbus to Athens through Lancaster.

ASHVILLE

George McDowell Jr., local high school student, has taken over the Circleville Daily Herald agency for Ashville, both as distributor of the Herald and collector. He will be much pleased if his customers can make their payments weekly, or nearly exact change, when the collecting call is made. Saturday is collecting day.

He made his start here as a type setting machine operator while yet in high school. Howard Cline is another operator of type machines with his start here, who is "making it go" out in California—and maybe in the war service by this time.

Yesterday morning, a couple of state highway patrolmen made an inspection of the three Harrison township operated school buses here at the local school grounds. The school board at a later date, will receive their report. The conveyances are not the property of the school board but individually owned. They are practically new being in use but for a couple of years.

H. E. Louis, Republican candidate for Pickaway county representative to the legislature, was here yesterday from New Holland passing out his candidate cards to the many he contacted. Wore the candidate, friendly smile along with a hand-shake grip, to convince even a Democrat that he actually meant what he said when soliciting their vote. With the very light vote cast at the August primary and the war tension at the height it is, anybody's guess is good as yours as to the

BUSINESS GAIN INDICATED BY FIGURES ON TAX

Pickaway county receipts of prepaid sales tax stamps have soared to $58,869.32, only $10,000 behind the total to this date in 1941 despite the fact that numerous taxable goods are no longer available for purchase.

State treasurer's office announced figures Friday disclosing that four of the eight classifications in the sale of stamps climbed higher during the week ending October 3, but that total receipts were off by $124,924.28 in revenue. The automotive classification suffered the heaviest loss, dropping from $247,002.18 to $86,056.32. Furniture moved down and so did building and miscellaneous. Groups gaining include general food, apparel and chain-store.

Total sale in the state for the week ending October 3 was $1,341,681.03 compared with $1,466,605.31 in 1941.

Counties of the state which are below Pickaway in total sales so far this year are Meigs, $53,080.17; Monroe, $17,186.87; Morgan, $20,447.18; Morrow, $23,297.64; Noble, $14,521.29; Paulding, $34,099.85; Perry, $45,945.85; Pike, $15,687.45; Union, $53,792.37; Vinton, $7,905.11; Adams, $26,061.74; Brown, $31,531.44; Carroll, $57,747.63; Gallia, $52,341.81; Geauga, $38,493.70; Harrison, $40,345.40; Hocking, $45,311.66; Holmes, $30,814.44.

Church Briefs

Annual Dresbach church homecoming will be held Sunday with services starting at 9:30 a. m. with the superintendent, Val Valentine, in charge.

This will be followed by an old fashioned prayer meeting with the class leader, Thad Hill, taking charge. A basket dinner will be served at the noon hour.

Afternoon services will start at 2 o'clock with the pastor, the Rev. Orville F. Gibbs, presiding. He will present the Rev. Harold Dutt of Stoutsville who will deliver the message.

Special music will be arranged for the program. All former pastors and friends of the congregation are asked to attend.

Women's Society for Christian Service of the Tarlton Methodist church will meet Thursday at 2 p. m. at the home of Miss Leona Hedges.

The W. S. C. S. of Mount Pleasant Methodist church will serve dinner Wednesday, October 21, at the Pickaway county Livestock Cooperative sale.

The Rev. F. G. Strickland of Williamsport will preach at 2:30 p. m. Sunday at the Westfall community meeting. His subject will be "In Need of Love."

Sunday, October 25, is being observed as annual missionary Sunday in Methodist churches. The Rev. Ernest Bartlett of South Bloomfield calls attention of all churches in his charge to the date.

outcome of the November election.

Frank Grice, our melon grower, received the other day from Auburndale, Florida, a box of persimmons as they grow down there, many times larger than they grow here. Frank and Mrs. Grice have spent a couple of winters down there at a large fruit orchard, and were it not for fire shortage, they'd be there again this coming season.

The demise of a perfectly fine and gentle old bossy was reported to us yesterday as having passed on and out at the farm of Hershel Hoover. Not especially much news about that, but when they told us that as a calf she was purchased here of the late, well known Dr. Charles Steward, that made it different and news. The Doctor Steward drug store, dwelling and horse and cow barn occupied the lot now used as the Cooper gas and service station. But to give the exact date of all this, we can't do at this instant, and to get those who do know for sure out of bed at this 5 o'clock morning hour, might get us beat up or something. Automobiles were not very numerous then when he drove his bovine milk givers from the pasture lot north of town to the cow stable here.

Bus Runs to Washington C. H. Scheduled to Start Monday

WILLIAMSPORT, NEW HOLLAND ON REGULAR RUN

Provision Made For Service From Main Line For Folk Of Atlanta

FEDERAL REQUEST MET
Announcement Of Complete Schedule Set For Saturday By Officials

Bus service will be started Monday between Lancaster, Circleville and Washington C. H. by the Valley Public Service company. The route will include Williamsport and New Holland, but buses will not be permitted to leave Route 22 to include Atlanta. However, Atlanta folk wishing to use the buses will be picked up at a service station on the main highway.

Announcement of the new service was made by Valley Public Service officials Friday. They said that the schedule would be completed Saturday. Two round trips will be made each day between all points.

Bus officials declared that the route was being inaugurated at the request of Office of Defense Transportation officials who believe that the new route will permit persons in the villages along Route 22 to save time and gasoline.

Some months ago the Valley Public Service bought the franchise of the Lancaster-Washington C. H. Bus company which had been operating between Lancaster and Circleville. Although the company's franchise called for buses to Washington C. H., none had been operated. The Valley Public Service has continued the Lancaster-Circleville run, and now has decided to expand it.

It has long been felt here that a bus line running to Circleville from New Holland and Williamsport would be a help to retail business. Residents of the western part of the county have been urging a bus line for a long while, but until now have not had their wishes granted.

Bus company officials said that modern vehicles would be assigned to the Lancaster-Washington C. H. line.

About a year ago there was considerable competition for a bus line franchise through the district west of Circleville, several companies bidding for the right to operate there. At that time talk was current that Uncle Sam intended to construct a big Army camp in the Pickaway-Ross county area. The camp, according to reported plans, would have covered an area almost reaching Route 22 in Wayne township. However, that talk has died down.

Cook's confectionery will continue to be the ticket office for the line.

Valley Public Service already operates bus lines from Columbus to Chillicothe through Circleville and from Columbus to Athens through Lancaster.

ASHVILLE

George McDowell Jr., local high school student, has taken over the Circleville Daily Herald agency for Ashville, both as distributor of the Herald and collector. He will be much pleased if his customers can make their payments weekly and if possible have the exact, or nearly exact change, when the collecting call is made. Saturday is collecting day.

Karl Hutchinson, printer and all round mechanical print shop worker, serving for quite awhile in the local office and that of the Lancaster newspaper plant, now has employment in a newspaper shop at Troy, Miami county. He made his start here as a type setting machine operator while yet in high school. Howard Cline is another operator of type machines with his start here, who is "making it go" out in California—and maybe in the war service by this time.

Yesterday morning, a couple of state highway patrolmen made an inspection of the three Harrison township operated school buses here at the local school grounds. The school board at a later date, will receive their report. The conveyances are not the property of the school board but individually owned. They are practically new being in use but for a couple of years.

Next Tuesday evening, the 20th, the WPA orchestra of the Capital City will give a concert along with a vaudeville show at the local school auditorium. Admission free. In the afternoon of same day this orchestra will give a concert for the school.

H. E. Louis, Republican candidate for Pickaway county representative to the legislature, was here yesterday from New Holland passing out his candidate cards to the many he contacted. Wore the candidate, friendly smile along with a hand-shake grip, to convince even a Democrat that he actually meant what he said when soliciting their vote. With the very light vote cast at the August primary and the war tension at the height it is, anybody's guess is good as yours as to the

Pickaway county receipts of prepaid sales tax stamps have soared to $58,869.32, only $10,000 behind the total to this date in 1941 despite the fact that numerous taxable goods are no longer available for purchase.

State treasurer's office announced figures Friday disclosing that four of the eight classifications in the sale of stamps climbed higher during the week ending October 3, but that total receipts were off by $124,924.28 in revenue. The automotive classification suffered the heaviest loss, dropping from $247,002.18 to $86,056.32. Furniture moved down and so did building and miscellaneous. Groups gaining include general food, apparel and chain-store.

Total sale in the state for the week ending October 3 was $1,341,681.03 compared with $1,466,605.31 in 1941. Counties of the state which are below Pickaway in total sales so far this year are Meigs, $53,080.17; Monroe, $17,186.87; Morgan, $20,447.18; Morrow, $23,297.64; Noble, $14,521.29; Paulding, $34,099.85; Perry, $45,945.85; Pike, $15,687.45; Union, $53,792.37; Vinton, $7,905.11; Adams, $26,061.74; Brown, $31,531.44; Carroll, $57,747.63; Gallia, $52,341.81; Geauga, $38,493.70; Harrison, $40,345.40;ocking, $45,311.66; Holmes, $30,814.44.

Church Briefs

Annual Dresbach church homecoming will be held Sunday with services starting at 9:30 a. m. with the superintendent, Val Valentine, in charge.

This will be followed by an old fashioned prayer meeting with the class leader, Thad Hill, taking charge. A basket dinner will be served at the noon hour. Afternoon services will start at 2 o'clock with the pastor, the Rev. Orville F. Gibbs, presiding. He will present the Rev. Harold Dutt of Stoutsville who will deliver the message.

Special music will be arranged for the program. All former pastors and friends of the congregation are asked to attend.

Women's Society for Christian Service of the Tarlton Methodist church will meet Thursday at 2 p. m. at the home of Miss Leona Hedges.

The W. S. C. S. of Mount Pleasant Methodist church will serve dinner Wednesday, October 21, at the Pickaway county Livestock Cooperative sale.

The Rev. F. G. Strickland of Williamsport will preach at 2:30 p. m. Sunday at the Westfall community meeting. His subject will be "In Need of Love."

Sunday, October 25, is being observed as annual missionary Sunday in Methodist churches. The Rev. Ernest Bartlett of South Bloomfield calls attention of all churches in his charge to the date.

outcome of the November election.

Frank Grice, our melon grower, received the other day from Auburndale, Florida, a box of persimmons as they grow down there, many times larger than they grow here. Frank and Mrs. Grice have spent a couple of Winters down there at a large fruit orchard, and were it not for fire shortage, they'd be there again this coming season.

The demise of a perfectly fine and gentle old bossy was reported to us yesterday as having passed on and out at the farm of Hershel Hoover. Not especially much news about that, but when they told us that as a calf she was purchased here of the late, well known Dr. Charles Steward, that made it different and news. The Doctor Steward drug store, dwelling and horse and cow barn occupied the lot now used as the Cooper gas and service station. But to give the exact date of all this, we can't do at this instant, and to get those who do know for sure out of bed at this 5 o'clock morning hour, might get us beat up or something. Automobiles were not very numerous then when he drove his bovine milk givers from the pasture lot north of town to the cow stable here.
